In Full Control of Legislature

Governor McCreary Pushing His Program Right Along.

STRONG POLITICAL ADVANTAGE

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 6.—Not since the session of 1904, when Gov. Beckham was in complete control of the legislature and was able to put through anything he wanted, has a governor been so completely the master of the legislative situation as is Gov. James B. McCreary at the present session of the general assembly. He occupies the position for various reasons, some of them political, but his greatest strength lies in the fact that the Democratic party stands committed to certain things and those things are what the governor recommended for enactment into law.

That the governor and his friends are able to pass any bill on which they set their hearts, is generally conceded now that the county unit bill has been passed in both houses. It was conceded that the county unit bill would be the hardest knot to unravel, and if that bill could be passed with so much ease it is believed that the administration now will be able to get through every measure which is on the program. And it was not a simple program that the governor set out to perform. He laid out for himself a hard task when he recommended the passage of some of the measures which were in his message to the general assembly.

In spite of this, there was racing and churning on last Wednesday when the senate seemed about to take up the bill providing for the election of prison commissioners by districts, rather than have them appointed by the governor. The administration's plan is to have the governor make the appointments and it is really the governor's pet measure. He is out after the scalp of Eli H. Brown, chairman of the commission and it looks like he may be able to get it. However, on this Wednesday, judging from the agitation displayed by the administration forces, the voters were in doubt on the prison bill. Senator Graham has a bill providing for the election of the prison commissioners. Without warning he asked that the bill be called from the hands of the committee and considered. Evidently the administration was not ready for a vote on the bill that day, for a filibuster was started and everybody grew excited. Another bill, the Euton primary act, had been set as a special order for eleven o'clock that day and the administration forces began to talk so as to use up the time until the special order arrived. They succeeded.

But this has started speculation as to how the senators will line up. The bi-partisan board plan for the management of the prisons does not appeal very strongly to the Democrats, even some of those who are favorable to the administration bill, and it is going to take some work to line up enough voters in the senate to put through the plan of having two Democrats and two Republicans on the commission. Conflicting statements are made by the leaders on the two sides. The administration men say they will be able to pass the bi-partisan board bill whenever it comes to a test. They say that they have enough votes now, and are ready for the issue at any time. The other side say that no bi-partisan board bill will be passed; that the bill most likely to go through is a bill giving the governor the power to name three commissioners, without any restriction regarding party. This bill probably will be the one on which the friends of the present prison commission will agree.

The lobby of the Capitol hotel is the place where everything happens and where the informal caucuses are held by the members. It is where the "lobbyists" work, too, as they have been excluded from the floor of the two houses. Judge Robert L. Stout, of this judicial district was standing in the lobby the other day when a member asked him if a certain person had been seen there in the last few minutes. Judge Stout replied: "I have not seen that particular person, but I believe he is the only man in Frankfort I have not seen here this afternoon. I am also confident that if I stayed here long enough, I could see him and everybody else, not only in Frankfort, but in the state."

Kentucky is going to have the nominees of both political parties, in state, county and city races, selected at primaries, the expenses to be born by the state, so that the poor man will have as good a chance as the rich man, so far as entrance fees are concerned. The old time convention is to be a thing of the past, and not another convention will be held in Kentucky, except to select delegates to the national conventions of both parties. Both houses of the legislature have passed the compulsory state primary bills, and it only remains now for the house and senate to agree on the bills. They are almost similar but are not identical, and one house must accept the bill offered by the other, before any bill can go to the governor. The new law will give the people a chance to select their officers, at a primary, but at the same time will permit any body to run for office, by simply asking that his name be put on the ballot. Primaries, as now held, in each political party, are costly affairs, and the entrance fee that has to be put up by each candidate is so much, usually, that only a man with money has a chance to enter. The fee in the race for United States senator, for instance, in the last Democratic primary was $2,500 for each of the two candidates. Under the new law a man will be able Lena May Makes Special Trip For P. H. Canary And Son Thursday.

P. H. Canary was in Cloverport Thursday delivering his tobacco, of which he had 20,000 pounds. The "Lena May" made a special trip to bring it down the river. Mr. Canary left Breckenridge county twenty-three years ago and returned last year from Henderson and bought the Sam Dix farm, near Ammons.

He is healthy, prosperous and fortunate, for he has a grown up son, who is farming with him. P. H. Canary, Jr., is just out of college and is well equipped to make as good a farmer as his father.

KNIGHTS' OF PYTHIAS BANQUET AND SHOW

The annual banquet of the K. of P. Lodge, of this city, will be held at the Cloverport Opera House on the evening of Thursday, Feb. 22. Motion pictures of "Damon and Pythias" will be given in connection with the banquet. All members and their families, as well as all visiting members, are cordially invited.—Chas. May, Sr., M. Weatherholt, W. A. Roff, Committee.

City Dads' Meeting

The city council met in its regular session Monday night, Mayor Barry presiding. All the newly elected members were present, including Yeager, who was absent the first meeting in January. A number of claims were allowed, but the claim of the gas company for the past month was rejected. This claim was for furnishing street lights, but the council members said they had no street lights during the month of January, and on motion of one of the members the claim was rejected. The members declared, that unless the gas company could furnish satisfactory lights they must be eliminated.

D. H. Severs executed bond as city tax collector, and was sworn in office. The meeting then adjourned.

Money For Sheep Claims.

County Clerk Herbert Beard has received the money for sheep claims.

NEW LAW FIRM

Moorman & Ball is the firm name of a new partnership that will rank with the strongest from its inception. The partners are Judge Henry DeHaven Moorman and Hon. W. Sherman Ball, both active, influential and progressive, with influential family relations, their wide personal acquaintance, and enjoying the popularity they do, their prospects are unusually bright. They are aggressive and ambitious, and have established names for integrity, astuteness and fairness.

Before settling in Hardinsburg Judge Moorman was, for some time, associated with Miller & Todd, one of the leading law firms of Owensboro. Besides his ten years of active practice in Hard-insburg, he has twice served as city attorney, was three years master commissioner of Breckenridge county, and was four years county judge. His being the youngest man ever elected to a Kentucky judgeship is an argument for his ability, when it is remembered that he served with great credit to himself and the great county that elected him. Since retiring from office the judge has built up a lucrative practice and enjoys an unexcelled reputation for professional fairness, for frankness with his clients and would-be clients.

Mr. Ball's acquaintance and popularity are much more than local, he having, for fifteen years, been a forceful factor in county and even State politics. Circuit court clerk of his native county, Breckenridge, for six years, he applied himself to the study of law throughout his term. He was assistant secretary of State, under Dr. Ben L. Bruner, of the last State administration, and resigned his position to accept the post-mastership of Hardinsburg and engage in the practice of law. Three years ago in Frankfort he passed an examination and was admitted to practice law. In connection with his other duties he studied law all the while he was in Frankfort.

On the 15 inst they will move into their handsome new suite of rooms in the Farmers' Bank building. They will be immediately over the postoffice, which will also move into this building. Judge Moorman's blue library will be but a part of what the firm will have as Mr. Ball is purchasing several hundred dollars worth of new books. Indeed, nothing outside city law offices will excel their equipment in this direction. They will have a stenographer in the office the year round, and will ever be ready to serve their friends and clients with efficiency and dispatch.

STATE PRESS.

Rule Works Both Way.

"King Billy" insisted that Collector Sherman Cooper should be removed from office for political activity, and then declared that if Collector Galvin could deliver the Sixth district to Tait he would have him reappointed. The Senator doubtless believes that it is poor rule that won't work both ways. One man is removed for political activity while another holding a like position is retained because of his political activity. "King Billy" is nothing if not inconsistent.—London Echo.

Don't Believe In Snap Primaries.

"If Mr. Cantrill is nominated for Congress in the 'snap primary' on March 16th, the Sun will not support him.

"If the snap primary is called off and in a later primary he should be nominated, the Sun will not support him.

"If the snap primary is held and other Democrats are contesting the nomination with Mr. Cantrill the Sun editors will demand the right to vote on the ground that they are known Democrats in good standing and will pledge themselves to support any other nominee but Mr. Cantrill. If they learn that they will be refused permission at the polls to vote on these terms, they will not vote at all.—Woodford Sun.

Watch Bradley's Men.

There is going to be a compulsory primary law in Kentucky, no matter whose name it bears. Push it, gentlemen of the general Assembly. And watch Senator Bradley's henchmen—Longley, Wilson and Petty—who are snooping around Frankfort trying to beat this bill. There was never a political boss who was willing to give up any part of his powers to the voters. With a compulsory primary Bradley would not dictate the naming of delegates and party policies, nor could any Democratic boss. The people would have to be consulted and in Kentucky, as in many other states, the season is ripe for consulting the people more and the bosses less.

On the Democratic side we do not know of a single man of consequence who is opposing a compulsory primary bill. This is remarkable, but true. But the old Republican will fight it though his agents, to the last ditch.—Owensboro Messenger.

William O'Connell Dies.

William O'Connell, the well-known grocer died Tuesday at 12:30 p. m., at St. Anthony's Infirmary after a brief illness. He had been in business on 7th & Hill for eighteen years and for the last three years has had a branch store at High street.

He is survived by a widow, five sons and one daughter. Burial from Keenans' Parlor, 12th & Market, Sunday at 2 p. m., at St. Louis cemetery.

The pall-bearers were: Mr. J. Hofelich, Mr. Wm. Reed, Mr. M. Sullivan, Mr. Chas. Speed, Mr. G. Scherry and Mr. Knoekton.

Warfield Hendrick For Woodrow Wilson.

Dear Mr. Babbage: I saw in the News where you wanted the Democrats to write whom they want for President. I am for Wilson.—Warfield Hendrick, Clover Creek.

Goes To Tennessee.

A. B. Suter, formerly of Irvington and Custer, has gone to Adams, Tenn., to accept the position as Cashier of the Bank of Adams which is the consolidation of the Planters Bank and Trust Company and the Bank of Adams. Mr. Suter organized the former bank. He is an efficient banker and will, no doubt, meet with success in his new fields.

HARDINSBURG

Circuit court begins next Monday with a lighter docket than usual, there being about half the number of appearances that the October term had. Some of the biggest suits are: McKinley Lyon vs. the L. H. & St. L. R'y., for $20,000 damages for injuries received while in the service of the Company; Cloverport Foundry & Machine Co. vs. Fred Rounds and Samuel Jesse, of Owensboro, for $3,680, alleged to be due on the "Golden Girl", a boat built by the plaintiffs; Mrs. Anna Belle Crawford, of Stephensport, vs. John S. Adair and the American Surety Co., of New York, for upwards of $3,500.

Hon. Gus Brown, State Senator, and his son, Murray, who has a good position in the State Capitol building through the legislative session, were at home Saturday from Frankfort.

The second quarterly conference of the year was held at the M. E. church, South, Monday and Tuesday, with Presiding Elder Rushing in charge.

Quarterly conference will be held at Taylor's Chapel, the M. E. church, next Friday and Saturday. Presiding Elder Creech, will preach Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. Morris Beard and Mrs. J. H. Pile are among the shut-ins, suffering from rheumatism.

The Board of Education held its session at the High School Building Friday morning, transacting business with rapidity until twelve, when they were entertained to dinner at the building by Mr. and Mrs. Whitworth, Supt. and Mrs. Driskell, Mr. and Mrs. Maxey, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Beard and Mr. and Mrs. Pile. At one o'clock the High School Literary Society met and rendered an excellent program, the Board and many visitors from town being present. The Board acted as judges for the debate. The question was resolved that Agriculture should be taught in the Public Schools and in the High Schools. The affirmative won.

Mrs. Annie Ryan, of Louisville, has moved into the Harvey Wood property.

Beard Bros. shipped two car loads of fat cattle the first of the week. They will soon ship another car load, all of which they have been feeding for some time.

The Board of Education ordered that all censuses be taken and put in the hands of the Supt. or in the hands of the Division Chairman before the second Saturday in April, when the Board will meet to arrange for transfers, adjusting small districts, etc.

Mrs. Geo. W. Evans will soon leave for a few weeks' study of the latest in millinery, preparatory to opening a millinery store, which will probably be in the present post office building.

Miss Whittinghill, of Fordsville, has accepted a position as stenographer with Mercer & Mercer.

The Eighth Grade pupils on the Roll of Honor for the last month stand in this order: Grover Gregory, Robert Haswell, Hewitt Gibson, Morris Kinchloe, Paul Chambliss, Samuel and William Evans, Laura Watlington and Thomas Whitfill.

Marriage license was issued Saturday to Clarence Pate to wed Miss Nannie Ammons on Monday, February 5.

Logan Hickerson, one of the county's progressive teachers left Monday for Bowling Green, where he will further equip for teaching.

Supt. Driskell left Monday for Bowling Green, where he will remain until Friday in attendance at the Annual Convocation of Superintendents of the Western Kentucky Division. The Superintendents of fifty-one counties meet there, while the Superintendents of the remaining sixty-eight counties, composing the Eastern Division, are this week in session at Richmond.

John Marshall has bought H. J. Roberts stock of groceries and will take possession of the business the 20th of this month.

Postmaster W. S. Ball informs us that he will move the post-office into the new bank building this week or next. For nineteen years the office has been in its present location. Its beautiful new quarters on Court Square are only a few yards from the present location, and will be nicely accessible to everybody.

Mr. Driskell informs us that the prospects are good for the school that is to open the 15th. We are informed that the teaching will be done by examiner Arthur Ater, of Lodiburg and by Supt. Driskell, of Hardinsburg.

Dr. Shepard, of the M. E. church, filled Rev. Dyer's pulpit at the M. E. church South Sunday morning in the absence of Rev. Dyer, who is helping conduct a successful meeting at Harned.

Miss Myrl Basham has been sworn in as assistant Postmistress at Lodiburg.

Let the Democrats nominate Wilson, of N. J., for President. Then the Republicans may trot out Roosevelt or Taft. We care not which, either one will get lost in the fog!

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

PICKED UP

Chas. Reidel, Thos Flood and James Dejarnette, Holt, were at Hardinsburg Monday pleading before the Board of Supervisors for a square deal in their assessments. They say it is one of the squarest boards the county has had in many years. Their fellow feeling is wondrous strong, all of which the News can testify to. We had a little experience ourselves and can say it was altogether pleasant whether we stand or fall in the outcome.

Tony King, of Irvington, bought last week Malcolm O'Bryan's farm of 90 acres near Jolly Station for $1,600. Mr. O'Bryan bought this farm last year for $1,200. He raised $600 worth of tobacco besides his living, making for himself a clear profit of $100.00 for this year's work. Malcolm is a Cloverport boy, worked here for years, jobbing around at first one thing and another till he finally hired himself to the country, got married and his work shows that there is something for a town boy in the fields of Breckenridge. The News congratulates the young man and hopes to see him climb higher in his life on the farm. Any boy can do this who has the grit and the get up that Malcolm has.

W F. Hall, of Webster, is a progressive young farmer. He studies his business and experiments with his land, his feeding cattle, hogs, and horses. He says he has had splendid results recently from feeding his milch cow. His daily ration is two pounds cotton seed meal, one and one-half pounds shelled corn and four pounds of clover hay. With this ration his cow gained one-third in milk in three weeks. He churned three gallons of milk and made four pounds of butter.

JUST A MINUTE

By Sam Keith

A Carnegie Hero.

A few years ago the free coinage of silver was advocated by many, and now it is the free and unlimited use of dynamite on the farm to loosen up the soil. The other day a fellow came tearing over the hill and shouting to every one to run for their lives, as Sherman and his army were just out of town. After quite a little excitement, he was told that it was only enterprising farmers digging sassafras root with dynamite. Game of all kinds is protected by the law; why not the sassafras patch? It is scarce, in old Breckenridge any way. If the farmers persist in blowing up the sink-holes and persimmon and sassafras patches; where will poor bunnies go for safety?

Dealing in Futures.

With all the waste land lying around Cloverport, why don't some farmer plant him out a fig orchard? The style of women's apparel is rapidly going back to the Garden of Eden fashion, and when it reaches that stage, he could corner the market on dress goods. A dress pattern from a fig tree could reasonably be sold at five dollars, besides he could fatten his hogs on the fruit. There are more ways of making money on the farm than raising tobacco.

Rubbing It In On The "400."

Col. Edward Green, of Texas, and a son of Hettie Green, of New York, says: "If a fashionable New York woman went up Fifth avenue with a ring in her nose the jewelers could not supply nose rings fast enough to supply the demand. They want to peacock around the theaters and restaurants so as to be seen by men not their husbands."

You are right Colonel. And when her poodle dog fails to recognize her, or dies from disgust, she hunts up something resembling half man and half monkey and marries it for a short time only.

No "Boss" Watterson.

(St. Louis Republic.)

It is going to be a difficult matter for the people to take the highly inflated Mr. Watterson as seriously as he does himself. His final statement relative to Gov. Wilson is probably the strangest compound of egotism, rancor and folly that our political history affords.

As to the character of the "evidence" which he claims to have against Gov. Wilson, but which he valiantly refused to produce, we, of course, can have no knowledge, but the evidence that Mr. Watterson has given against himself as a disappointed agent of Thomas F. Ryan, of the Traction and Tobacco Trusts, is as conclusive as anybody could wish.

The trouble with Woodrow Wilson appears to have been that as a man he could not endure the bossism of Henry Watterson. We do not believe that the Democratic party as a whole will be any more patient.

For a sprain you will find Chamberlain's Liniment excellent. It allays the pain, removes the soreness, and soon restores the parts to a healthy condition. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers.

Attacks On Gov. Wilson Making Him Stronger.

In an editorial headed "Political Boomerangs," the Saturday Evening Post discusses the recent attacks made on Gov. Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, as follows:

"A notion seems to be floating round New York that the Governor of New Jersey has committed some crime of so heinous a nature that right-minded persons are absolved from treating him decently. His application to the Carnegie Foundation for the teacher's pension to which his educational services might well entitle him was dug out of the files and published in an amiable but mistaken belief that it would discredit him. A little later his private letter to a former friend was given currency, with an intention of making trouble at the psychological moment between himself and Mr. Bryan. Both the application and the letter would ordinarily have been considered confidential; and this willingness to injure the Governor by sneaking means indicates that in some quarters he is regarded as beyond the pale of respectability.

"Governor Wilson's crime, of course, consists in advocating insurgent or radical political policies. As there is only one important locality where such policies are considered criminal, it will not be difficult to locate the quarter whence any sneaking attack upon him comes. It is well settled in American politics that attacks upon any candidate from that quarter are much more helpful than harmful to his candidacy. We hope it is going to be well settled, also, that dirty politics will always react upon its authors."

MOST COURAGEOUS DEMOCRAT IN CONGRESS

One of the ablest and most courageous Democrats in Congress is Ben Johnson, chairman of the District of Columbia Committee, and we do not suppose there is another member of the House of Representatives so thoroughly hated by the grafters and Treasury looters, who have for years been looting the general Government through the District appropriation bills, as this same democratic Democrat. Ben Johnson made a name for himself in his native State, serving as a member of the Legislature, Internal Revenue Collector, Speaker of the House, State Senator, and is now serving his third term in Congress. He is in the prime of life, of tall commanding presence, genial and cordial to all who meet him, and positive in his convictions when once made. That he has sized up the situation here in the District of Columbia pretty accurately, and has struck terror in the hearts of these genial grafters who have so long carried things with a high hand is putting it mildly. The brazen effrontery of the Republican newspapers of the District of Columbia in making war upon him, even before he had been named as chairman of the District Committee, shows to what lengths this band of "best citizens," so-called, will go.

That they have overplayed their hand and found instead of a weakling, susceptible to their time-worn custom of dinners and social functions, an honest courageous man—eager and willing to do justice to all of the people, inside and outside, of the District of Columbia—has now dawned upon them with terrible force. And the National Democrat trusts that the real Democrats of the House will hold up Mr. Johnson's hands in his fight for honesty and principle, and not be led astray by the unjust attacks of the local and designing Republican newspapers of this city.—National Democrat, of Washington, D. C.

COUNTRY STORE NOT NAPPING.

The country store and the store of the small town is beginning to vigorously take hold of "the idea of service". The keeper is fast learning that etiquette should be practised in business as well as in the home and social circles. Not many years back the merchant and the clerk of a small store kept their chairs around the stove when a customer entered and waited for him to ask for what he wanted. Now the good clerk makes every effort to ascertain what the customer is looking for and to serve him as quickly as possible. "The idea of service" should be kept in mind constantly by the clerk who is anxious to make an efficient business man of himself.

WHAT WE HAVE IN STORE.

The Breckenridge News is being favored with some interesting material that will be published soon. S. P. Drury has sent in an article on "Pea Farming". Mrs. James Edward Clippis sent an article about a Breckenridge county darkey entitled "The Man Who Broke The Bank". Miss Mary Kennedy, assistant advertising manager for J. Bacon & Son, has contributed a letter from a Breckenridge county boy in the Navy.

POLITICS GRAFT.

Some of the energy directed to cut-out the game of graft said to be played by trusts, should be turned to the politicians. Every man knows that politicians are the biggest grafters living. Politics is like an apple that is rotten to the core, but the trust has its red and good side. We believe, however, there is a turning point in all things, and we are hoping for this to come soon in politics.

"The difference between the organization and the machine, says Woodrow Wilson, is that the organization is the systematic co-operation of men for a common purpose, while the machine is a systematic co-operation of men for a private purpose."

This is a very plain way of stating a very plain fact. Governor Wilson is a plain man and his plain way of putting things are opening the eyes of the plain people that he is a suitable man for President of these United States.

The rank and file of the Republican party in this county are outspoken for Teddy. They say they have had enough of Taft and his policies. The office-holders and postmasters are for Taft, save and except Jesse Eskridge, who is a live wire for Roosevelt.

Tomorrow will be a fateful day for the children of Irvington, and we trust that the graded school will be given them.

LITTLE WORD PICTURES OF LIFE

Miss Eloise Nolte has been writing some very original and unusual letters back home to her friends since she has been at the Cross school in Louisville. She illustrates all her news and ideas and is developing quite a talent for drawing.

The Rev. Mr. Frank Lewis tells a funny request that was made to him when asked to conduct the funeral service of a young girl. Her parents said that the daughter was not a member of the church and cared little for religious services. Their request was that the funeral services consist of the reading of a bit of scripture and the two songs; "Will There Be Any Stars In My Crown?" and "No, Not One."

Not long ago drifted into the News office a touching little story of a Christmas incident. A mother had made a cake and sent it to her grown son away from home. When he tasted it he said aloud to himself as though he were a little boy again sitting at the table by her: "Mummy, mummy that's good, mummy that's the best cake you ever made." Tears filled his eyes—his heart came up in his throat. His mother was not there to hear him and he was home-sick!

While sitting in the lobby of Hotel Atkin at Knoxville, Tenn. Mr. Jess Owen was a witness to the terrible tragedy that occurred there last Friday night. In writing to his father, Dr. Owen, of this city, he said: "I sat down near a young man to read your letter. Just as I did another young man came toward the one sitting near me with a pistol in his hand. When he got in about six feet of us, he fired, hitting the man sitting near me in the chest. He said: 'Don't shoot me,' and started to run. The man shot again, killing the other man instantly. He fell a few feet from me, then the man who did the shooting turned around, looked at me, deliberately placed his pistol against his heart and fired two bullets through his heart. The pistol was so close to his clothes they caught fire. He took his hand and put the fire out, though shot twice through the heart he didn't fall. Then he put his pistol against his head and blew his brains out. He was looking me square in the eyes when he shot himself all three times. Both men fell in a few feet of me. I will never forget how the man looked at me who did the shooting." The Knoxville Sentinel says: "Jealousy caused the killing of C. Cadle and the suicide of Philip R. Yow Friday night in the lobby of Hotel Atkin."

to run for senator. If he wants to, without having to put up anything.

Railroad representatives sprung a surprise on the railroad commission Wednesday night by appearing before the committees on railroads of the two houses and fighting the bill, drawn by Lawrence Finn, extending the power of the railroad commission. Mr. Finn has a letter from Col. Henry L. Stone, chief attorney for the L. & N. railroad, stating that he would not oppose the passage of the bill. He said that Mr. Finn was authorized to quote him to that effect in convention with members of the legislature. The L. & N. is not yet fighting the bill, so that anybody could take notice, but the other railroads are making a fight. The bill gives the railroad commission a great deal more power than the commission now has, and it was a surprise to everybody that the L. & N. had agreed not to fight the bill.

But all doubt about how the other railroads would stand was not at rest when the representatives of the railroads appeared before the committees and said that they were opposed to the passage of the bill. They did not do much good with the committee as that body decided to report the Finn bill with the recommendation of the committee, and the passage through the house and senate. The bill may have some rough sledding.

It is predicted by Mr. Finn, who is chairman of the railroad commission, that if the railroads beat this bill, there will be a campaign next time members of the legislature are elected, with the railroads as the issue and the people will send a legislature to Frankfort that is committed to the passage of a drastic railroad law, giving the commission power to control. The commission really has no power as it now stands and can do but little to relieve the burdens of the shippers. The people think that the commission has much greater power than it has.

The most far-reaching bill that has been introduced in the legislature at the present session is one that has attracted little attention. This bill regulates the liability of employers for accident to employees. It removes contributory negligence as a defense in civil action for damages. It also provides that assumption of risks can not be pleaded as a defense in such actions. The law applies not only to railroads, but also to all employers of labor and means that the bars would be thrown down for lawyers who make a practice of damage suits. It would mean that a man who was injured, even though by his own fault, could still maintain a suit for damages and the negligence that the plaintiff was guilty of, would count only in mitigation of damages. The bill was introduced by Representative Wesley V. Perry.

The most remarkable thing in Frankfort this winter is Gov. McCreary. He is working like a man of thirty instead of seventy-four and has not "turned a hair" since the session began. The governor was talking at the reception which he gave at the mansion Tuesday night and outlined his plan of living:

"I set my alarm clock for 6 o'clock every morning, and the man who makes my fire comes at that time. I do not get up as soon as I wake up, as I like to lie in bed and think for a while before arising. I get up at 6:30 o'clock every morning and eat breakfast about 8 and then I am ready to go to my office."

The governor has not been to bed until midnight any night since he took the oath of office as governor for the second time. He says when a man reaches his age, the man does not need as much sleep as a younger one if he sleeps well. Gov. McCreary is like a debutante about his receptions, and wants everybody in Kentucky to attend them. He is pleased when the crowd is large and sees to it that everybody has a good time. The receptions have been more and more popular and the last one was so crowded that one could hardly move, but everybody enjoyed the evening to the fullest, and nearly everybody stayed to the last minute.

The present session of the legislature is half over, and while some bills have been passed, really very little work has been done. Not a bill has been sent to the governor for his signature, although that is not remarkable considering the way previous legislatures have waited until the last minute to get into action. Still, this legislature has been held up as a working body. It has been working overtime introducing bills, and the hopper is "plumb full" as one of the members put it. When they get into the stretch, however, and get in holding afternoon sessions, soon to be followed by night sessions, there will be plenty doing.

The only laugh that has been heard in the house came on Thursday, when a bill was introduced, by Mr. Robertson, of Louisville, defining the limit within which eggs could be kept in cold storage and requiring hotels and restaurants which serve cold storage eggs to announce this fact in flaming letters

A Patriotic Creed

At the banquet of the New York bankers the other evening, the diners were handed a card which read as follows:

"We believe in our country—the United States of America. We believe in her Constitution, her laws, her institutions and the principles for which she stands. We believe in her future—the past is secure. We believe in her vast resources, her great possibilities—yes, more, her wonderful certainties.

"We believe in the American people, their genius, their brain and their brawn. We believe in their honesty, their integrity and dependability. We believe that nothing can stand in their way of their commercial advancement and prosperity.

"We believe, that what are termed 'times of business depression' are but periods of preparation for greater and more pronounced commercial successes.

"And we believe that in our country are being worked out greater problems, the solution of which will be for the benefit of all mankind."

PROCEEDINGS

Of Called Term Of The Breckinridge County Fiscal Court, Held At The Court House, Jan. 5 and 6, 1912

At a Fiscal Court, called and held in and for Breckinridge county at the court house in Hardinsburg, Ky., on the 5th day of Jan., 1912, for the purpose of receiving or rejecting the new bridge on the river road from Holt to Cloverport, and any other business that may come before the court.

CHAPTER XIX

A MESSAGE FROM THE BUSH.

ONCE they were well into the thick bush, the horses had to be abandoned. Papehama was left in charge, while Joan and Sheldon and the remaining Tahitians pushed ahead on foot. An hour later, following along a wild pig trail, Sheldon suddenly halted. The bloody tracks had ceased. The Tahitians cast out in the bush on either side, and a cry from Utani apprised them of a blind. Joan waited till Sheldon came back.

"It's Manko," he said. "Kwaku did for him, and he crawled in there and died. That's two accounted for. There are ten more."

Crossing one of the quiet jungle spaces, where night moved but a velvet twelve inch butterfly, they heard the sound of shots.

"Elton, Joan counted. 'It was only one gun. It must be Papehama.' They hurried on, but when they reached the spot they were in doubt. The two horses stood quietly tethered, and Papehama, squatted on his haunchs, was having a peaceful smoke. Advancing toward him, Sheldon tripped on a body that lay in the grass, and as he saved himself from falling his eyes lighted on a second. Joan recognized this one. It was Cosse, one of Gogoomy's tribesmen, the one who had promised to catch at sunset the pig that was to have baited the hook for Saturn."

"No luck, missle," was Papehama's greeting, accompanied by a disconsolate shake of the head. "Catch only two boys. I have good shot at Gogoomy, only I miss." "But you killed them," Joan chided. "You must catch them alive." The Tahitian smiled.

"How?" he queried. "I am have a smoke. I think about Tahiti, and breadfruit, and jolly good time at Bora-Bora. Quick, just like that, ten boy he run out of bush for me. Each boy have long knife. Gogoomy have long knife one hand and Kwaku's head in other hand. I no stop to catch 'em alive. I shoot like h—, how you catch 'em alive, ten boy, ten long knife and Kwaku's head?"

The scattered paths of the different boys, where they broke back after the disastrous attempt to rush the Tahitian, soon led together. They traced it to the Berande, which the runaways had crossed with the clear intention of burying themselves in the huge mangrove swamp that lay beyond.

"There is no use our going any farther," Sheldon said. "Seelec will turn out his village and hunt them out of that."

Never had runaways from Berande been more zealously hunted. The deeds of Gogoomy and his fellows had been a bad example for the 150 new recruits. One by one the boys were captured. Gogoomy alone remained at large, and, as the pursuit closed in on him, he conquered his fear of the bushmen and headed straight in for the mountainside backbone of the island. Sheldon, with four Tahitians, and Seelec, with thirty of his hunters, followed Gogoomy's trail a dozen miles into the open grass lands, and then Seelec and his people lost heart. He confessed that neither he nor any of his tribe had ever ventured so far inland before, and he narrated for Sheldon's benefit most horrible tales of the bushmen.

"Gogoomy he finish along them fella bushmen," he assured Sheldon. "My word, he finish close up, kal-kal nitogether."

So the expedition turned back. Nothing could penetrate the coast natives to venture further, and Sheldon, with his four Tahitians, knew that it was madness to go on alone.

That night, after dinner, Sheldon and Joan were playing billiards when Satan barked in the compound and Lalaperi, sent to see, brought back a tired and travel stained native who wanted to talk with the "big fella white master." Sheldon went out on the veranda to see him.

"What name you come along house belong me sin he go down?"

"Me Charley," the man muttered apologetically and wearily. "Me stop along Bhuu."

"Ah, Bhuu Charley, eh? Well, what name you talk along me? What place big fella master along white man he stop?"

Joan and Sheldon together listened to the tale Bhuu Charley had brought. He described Tudor's expedition up the Balesum, the dragging of the boats up the rapids, the passage up the river where it threaded the grass lands, the innumerable washings of gravel by the white men in search of gold, the first rolling foothills, the mini traps of spear staked pits in the jungle trails, the first meeting with the bushmen who had never seen tobacco and knew not the virtues of smoking, their friendliness, the deeper penetration of the interior around the flanks of the Lion's Head, the bush sores and the fevers of the white men, and their... trusting the bushmen. One morning Bhuu Charley noticed that the women and children had disappeared. Tudor, at the time, was lying in a stupor with fever in a late camp five miles away, the main camp having moved on those five miles in order to prospect an outcrop of likely quartz. Bhuu Charley was midway between the two camps when the absence of the women and children struck him as suspicious.

"My word," he said, "me sarvee too much trouble close up. Me run. My word, me run."

Tudor, quite unconscious, was slung across his shoulder and carried a mile down the trail. Here, hiding new trail, Bhuu Charley had carried him for a quarter of a mile into the heart of the deepest jungle and hidden him in a big banyan tree. There, and from the direction of the main camp, he had heard two rifle shots. And that was all. He had never seen the white men again.

"There is only one thing to do," Sheldon said to Joan. "I'll start the first thing in the morning."

"We'll start," she corrected. "I can get twice as much out of my Tahitians as you can, and, besides, one white should never be alone under such circumstances."

Sheldon sent for a gang boss and told him to bring ten of the biggest, best and strongest Poonga-Poonga men.

"Not salt water boys," Sheldon cautioned. "But bush boys—leg belong him strong fella leg. Boy no sarvee miskeet, no good. You bring in shoot miskeet strong fella."

They were ten picked men that filed up on the veranda and stood in the glare of the lanterns. Their heavy, muscular legs advertised that they were bushmen. Killing was their natural vocation, not weed cutting; and while they would not have ventured the Guadalcanar bush alone, with a white man like Sheldon behind them, and a white Mary such as they knew Joan to be, they could expect a safe and delightful time. Besides, the great master had told them that the eight gigantic Tahitians were going along.

"Plenty strong fella fight," Sheldon warned them in conclusion. They grinned and shifted delightedly.

"S'pose bushmen kal-kal along you?" he queried.

"No fear," answered their spokesman, one Koogoo, a strapping, thick-lipped Ethiopian looking man. "S'pose Poonga-Poonga boy kal-kal bush boy?" Sheldon shook his head, laughing, and dismissed them and went to overhaul the damage room for a small shelter tent for Joan's use.

It was quite a formidable expedition that departed from Berande at break of day next morning in a fleet of canoes and dugways. There were Joan and Sheldon, with Bhuu Charley and Lalaperi, the eight Tahitians and the ten Poonga-Poonga men, each proud in the possession of a bright and shining modern rifle.

Bhuu Charley led the way onward into the rolling foothills, following the trail made by Tudor and his men weeks before. That night they camped well into the hills and deep in the tropic jungle. The third day found them on the runways of the bushmen—narrow paths that compelled single file and that turned and twisted with endless convolutions through the dense undergrowth.

Here, in the mid-morning, the first casualty occurred. Bhuu Charley had dropped behind for a time and Koogoo, the Poonga-Poonga man who had boasted that he would out the bushmen, was in the lead. Joan and Sheldon heard the twanging thrum and saw Koogoo throw out his arms, at the same time dropping his rifle, stumble forward and sink down on his haunchs and knees. Between his naked shoulders, low down and to the left, appeared the bone barbed head of an arrow. He had been shot through and through. Cocked rifles swept the bush with nervous apprehension, but there was no rustle, no movement; nothing but the hum of an oppressive silence.

"Bushman he no stop," Bhuu Charley called out, the sound of his voice startling more than one of them.

"My word! Look in that fella," he continued, brushing aside the leafy wall of the runway, and exposing a bow so massive that no one bushman could have bent it.

The Bhuu man traced out the mechanics of the trap and exposed the hidden fiber in the tangled undergrowth that in contact with Koogoo's foot had released the fatal bow.

They were deep in the primeval forest. Bhuu Charley took the lead as they pushed on, and trap after trap yielded its secret lurking place to his keen scrutiny. The way was beset with a thousand annoyances, chiefest among which were thorns, cunningly concealed, that penetrated the bare feet of the invaders. Once, during the afternoon, Bhuu Charley barely missed being impaled in a staked pit that undermined the trail. There were times when all stood still and waited for half an hour or more, while Bhuu Charley prospected suspicious parts of the trail.

Where a slight runway entered the main one Sheldon paused and asked Bhuu Charley if he knew where it led. "Pretty lush fella garden he stop along there short way little hill," was the answer. "All right you like 'm go look 'm along. Walk 'm easy," he cautioned a few minutes later. "Close up, that fella garden. S'pose some bush fella he stop, we catch 'm."

Creeping ahead and peering into the clearing for a moment, Bhuu Charley beckoned Sheldon to come on cautiously. Joan crouched beside him and together they peeped out. On one edge of the clearing was a small grassy house, open sided, a mere ruin shelter. In front of it, crouched on its haunchs before a fire, was a gaunt and bearded bushman. The fire seemed to smoke excessively, and in the thick of the smoke a round dark object hung suspended. The bushman seemed absorbed in contemplation of this object.

Warning them not to shoot unless the man was successfully escaping, Sheldon beckoned the Poonga-Poonga men forward. Before the bushman could shoot his swift enemies were upon him. He was rolled over and over and dragged to his feet, disarmed and helpless.

"Why, he's an ancient Babylonian!" Joan cried, regarding him. "He's an Assyrian, a Phoenician! Look at that straight nose, that narrow face, those oval cheek bones and that slanting high forehead and the beard and the eyes too!"

"And the snaky looks," Sheldon laughed.

"My word, bush fella kal-kal along that fella boy," Bhuu Charley remarked.

So stolid was his manner of utterance that Joan turned carelessly to see what had attracted his attention and found herself face to face with Gogoomy. At least it was the head of Gogoomy—the dark object they had seen hanging in the smoke.

Nor was Joan's horror lessened by the conduct of the Poonga-Poonga boys. On the instant they recognized the head, and on the instant rose their wild hearty laughter as they explained to one another in shrill falsetto voices Gogoomy's end was a joke. He had been fooled in his attempt to escape. He had played the game and lost. An what greater joke could there be than that the bushmen should have eaten him?

The Poonga-Poonga men's laughter died down, and they regarded the spectacle with glittering eyes and gluttonous expressions. The Tahitians, on the other hand, were shocked, and Adamu Adamu was shaking his head slowly and grunting forth his disgust. Joan was angry. Her face was white, but in each cheek was a vivid spray of red. Disgust had been displaced by wrath, and her mood was clearly vengeful.

Sheldon laughed.

"It's nothing to be angry over," he said. "You mustn't forget that he hacked off Kwaku's head and that he ate one of his own comrades that ran away with him.

IN FRONT OF IT CROUCHED A BEARDED BUSHMAN.

"And don't forget," Sheldon added, "that he is the son of a chief and that as sure as fate his Port Adams tribesmen will take a white man's head in payment."

"It is all so ghastly ridiculous," Joan finally said.

"And—er—romantic," he suggested slyly.

She did not answer and turned away, but Sheldon knew that the shaft had gone home.

PAPER BAG COOKING

Great System Perfected by M. Soyer, Famous London Chef.

MERITS OF PAPER BAG COOKING REVIEWED.

By Martha McCulloch Williams. In this final paper on my experiences with M. Soyer's paper bag cooking, it may be well to sum up briefly its claims and its performances.

In the claims, item one, economy, more than vital in the present state of finance high and low.

Item two, nutrition; things cooked in paper bags certainly set better upon the stomach and return more strength of mind and body than the same things cooked outside it.

Item three, prevention—the prevention of ptomaine and other obscure poisons, bred betwixt food and air. Not the wildest microbe of them all can survive baking in the oven—and after the baking the bag is thrown away.

Item four, increase and bettering of flavors, which means increase and bettering of food itself.

Item five, the making tender of tough, hence indigestible fiber, as in round steak, old fowls and such like things.

Item six, prevention of smells—an advantage so apparent as to require no more than bare mention.

Item seven, the crowning mercy, the abolition of scrubbing out pots and pans.

A fine array truly. But not the whole tale of benefits. The whole might be tedious. Any way, in the little remnant of allotted space, other things press to be spoken.

Words of caution, for example. In cooking in paper bags mind, not your p's and q's, but the simple directions for use. Namely, to grease the bags well, not to overfill them, to fold over the open end three times and fasten the fold with wire clips, to lay the filled bag always seam side up, and if by chance it breaks, to put it instantly inside another bigger bag, to finish the cooking.

Buy clips in several sizes. They are cheap and almost everlasting. Use them freely in fastening up the bags—they can be pulled off before the bag is thrown away and used over and over.

Do not be niggard as regards bags. Often it is better to use two or three small ones than a single one of medium or large size.

Coal and wood ranges are not so well adapted to paper bag cooking as gas ranges. Still, bag cooking can be done with any kind of heat—the knack lies in the regulation of it. The theory of paper bag cooking is this: A cold bag put into a hot stove gets warm very quickly throughout, and the paper of it crisps wherever it touches nothing but air. This quick heat is essential—it vaporizes the liquids or the juices inside the bag, and makes a medium for softening and flavoring the food fiber. But if the heat is too long continued, it destroys the tensile strength of the bag, makes it break of itself, and spill its contents. Hence, the importance of lowering the heat, and quickly, before this destruction is accomplished.

There are several ways of doing this. They may be used in combination or separately. First, push in the dampers, then open the oven door, and set inside upon the oven floor a shallow pan of cold water. Leave the oven door ajar for two or three minutes, with a strip of white paper on the shelf beside the bag. If the paper turns pale yellow the heat is sufficiently reduced. If it turns brown very quickly, set the door wide, take out the water pan and refill after emptying, with fresh cold water, then set again upon the oven floor. Keep the door ajar until the test paper merely yellows. By that time the dampers should have done their work sufficiently. Close the oven door, leaving inside neither strip of clean white paper. In three minutes look at it—if it is browning too fast, set the door ajar again, but if merely yellowing let the door stay closed.

This regulation of heat is a vital part of the problem, but much less intricate than it sounds. A gas range too hot needs to have half the flame turned off, and what remains reduced as low as is safe.

In baking pastry and cake it is essential to make very tiny holes in the upper side of the bag before they go in the oven. The holes should be in the highest part of the bag, but not very close together. Things cooked at full head of gas—those which take five to ten minutes—should not be taken up until the gas is extinguished, so as to avoid all risk of burning the hands. Relighting the stove means no more than the sacrifice of a match—and even half a minute of gas flame will pay for many matches.

There are no trifles in paper bag cooking, nor in any other method of cookery for that matter. Things that seem too small to count make the difference between success and failure here as in the other concerns of life. As, for instance, a clip loosely put on may let liquids run out, making heaps of trouble for the cook, filling the house with ill odors, and half ruining a dish otherwise beyond compare.

These are but examples that might be infinitely multiplied. They should suffice to prove that the paper bag, in return for its wonder-working, demands good and careful handling. Whoso giveth it will have her reward. (Copyright, 1911, by the Associated Literary Press.)

Do you know that more real danger lurks in a common cold than in any other of the minor ailments? The safe way is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a thoroughly reliable preparation, and rid yourself of the cold as quickly as possible. This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

"OPPORTUNITY" KNOCKS

at the door of every citizen of Breckinridge county today. Will you bid it enter to your fireside, and there place yourself open to conviction that it is in reality—"Opportunity"—if conclusive evidence is presented? If you will do this, read, ponder over, and act upon the following proposition: Roy Moorman, a boy whom you all know, born and reared in Breckinridge county, after traveling through and living in every portion of the West; after having had abundant opportunities and numerous positions of trust, and large responsibility with some of the strongest corporations of the nation (among them, The Copper Queen Consolidated Mining Co., of Bisbee, Arizona; Terminal Railway, Missouri & Pacific, and St. Louis & Iron Mountain railroads, of St. Louis, Mo.; Park Department, city of Los Angeles, Cal.; Lampton, Crabb & Ramey Co., of Louisville, Ky., and numerous others, to any of which I have the pleasure to refer) has found a section of the United States where there is an opportunity for every man in every line, unequalled in any other place in the United States. That section is the

Imperial Valley, of California

In former articles you have read of the Wonderful Fertility of its soil. You have read how, that in twelve years time, it has been transformed from a barren, desolate waste, of no value, to the richest agricultural valley in the whole world, now valued at more than thirty million dollars ($30,000,000). The valley had its starting place, so, also must the corporation that is now being organized.

Since 1903 Roy Moorman has searched the West for something good enough to offer his home people. Why to offer his home people? Because that his experience with corporations has taught him that "In Union there is Strength." It takes money to make money. By a combination of small subscriptions to one fund a large amount of money can be brought together. This is the intention of those incorporating.

Roy Moorman & Co. OF EL CENTRO, IMPERIAL VALLEY, CAL.

The purposes of this corporation are to purchase, hold, subdivide, colonize, settle, sell, convey, and otherwise, acquire, deal in, and dispose of land and other real property of every nature.

The amount of stock placed on the market is 10,000 shares, Par Value $1.00 a Share. The terms are CASH with Subscription. No Subscription for less than 10 Shares will be accepted

Every cent invested in this corporation will be protected by A-1 Security.

To Investors;

Not one cent of the money subscribed to this corporation will be spent on get-rich quick schemes or anything of that nature. It is the intention of those managing its affairs to conduct a straightforward, legitimate investment business. Farm lands will be sold in small acreages, on easy terms. Small houses will be built in town, and sold in payments as rent. One Los Angeles firm, organized about 30 years ago along similar lines to this corporation, sold its stock originally at $100 a share; $100 invested in its stock, is today worth nearly $16,000 with accumulated dividends. Many investors here are getting from 50 to 75 per cent a year on their investment, from rentals of cottages and tent houses. Money is worth 10 per cent on the very safest loans. Your money will be as safe here as anywhere in the United States. Your subscription is solicited and will be duly appreciated, whether it is large or small.

IN CONCLUSION: You have the proposition before you and you know of the ability, honesty, and character of those behind it. You know that you will receive dollar for dollar invested, with, at least, twice the interest you could get in your own locality. Perhaps you have invested in many a stranger's get-rich-quick scheme, to your regret.

It is too much to ask the people of Breckinridge county for just one-half the amount of the subscriptions given to the various investments offered them by promoters (of whom they knew nothing at the time, and have learned "too much" about them since) in the last five years?

Remember, just 10,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each. If you want to back a winner, fill out coupon below and mail today.

TOBACCO POOL AN ASSURED SUCCESS

ALREADY A VAST ACREAGE HAS BEEN SIGNED.

A WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN

Between Now and the Date of Closing the Pool on March 1, the Whole Burley District Will Be Thoroughly Canvassed.

Plans are under way by the Burley Tobacco Society to have a whirlwind campaign during the month of February in the interest of the ten-year pool, and representatives of the society will canvass the whole Burley district in central Kentucky.

The campaign will be one of education, designed to make sure that every grower in every county understands fully the terms and conditions of the new ten-year pooling pledge.

Speeches have been made on the proposed pool heretofore and they have brought forth splendid results. It is the desire of the Executive Committee of the Burley Tobacco Society that every grower in central Kentucky know exactly what the new pledge means and the many benefits it is destined to bestow on those who sign.

Pool Closes March 1.

President Clarence Leffins says that the new ten-year pool will positively close March 1, and after that date none can get in. Already there are enough signers to make it a go, but it is of course the desire of the Executive Committee that every grower have a chance to get in.

It is especially desirable, the Burley officials say, to have all the old poolers in.

New Pool a Selling Pool.

The new pool is a selling pool, not a holding pool, and it contemplates the manufacture of the Burley Tobacco Society members' own tobacco. It means a sharing in the profits heretofore enjoyed exclusively by the manufacturer. It means going after the real profit end of the tobacco business.

Heretofore the grower in the Burley belt has satisfied himself with raising and selling his tobacco. Under the new pool it is to be manufactured and sold at an additional profit.

Dividends Will Be Declared.

Dividends will be declared quarterly or semi-annually, the Burley Tobacco Company will carry its own insurance, tobacco will be handled in the most scientific way, and every possible saving will be made. Furthermore the new pool is not in restraint of trade, as it only contemplates the signing up of half the land and the grower can sell his tobacco on any market he chooses and get his money promptly, minus the small per cent required to pay operating expenses and keep the company together.

Contract Blanks Now Ready.

Contracts may be had on application to the Burley offices in Lexington or from any of the chairmen of the county Boards of Control.

Already a vast acreage has been signed, it is said, and the pool is an assured success.

LOOSE LEAF MARKETS COME TO STAY.

Loose leaf markets are being established throughout the entire Burley belt in Kentucky, and that they have come to stay one has only to visit them, see the sales made, note the up-to-date manner of handling and talk with the buyers. The Burley Society is establishing loose leaf markets at all central points where they own warehouse properties, and among the towns now having Burley loose leaf markets are Frankfort, Georgetown, Mt. Sterling, Shelbyville, Cynthiana, Williamstown and Horse Cave. Other towns may get these loose leaf markets in the near future.

The Shelby Record, speaking of the loose leaf market recently opened there, says:

"The tobacco raisers are shaking hands with themselves and their neighbors, because loose leaf warehouses have been opened here in Shelbyville, where they can dispose of their crops at small cost to them, and at living prices. Just think of it. They get paid 'spot cash' for every pound they bring in, let it be a 'little jag,' or a big crop, they know just as soon as it is weighed how much they will have to pay for selling it. They know what it will cost to sell it, and that there is nothing for freight, drayage, storage, insurance or commissions, and that they were not obliged to buy hog-heads or pay for prizing. They just haul it to the warehouse and when the tobacco is sold, a slight charge is made; that's all."

"Mr. Banta was one who wondered whether it would be best for him to sell his 14,000 pound crop to a speculator at 8 cents at his barn or bring it to Shelbyville and have it sold at the Shelby Loose Leaf Warehouse. He brought it here, and got a little rise of 12 cents on an average. Many others are having a like experience. The loose leaf sales continue to grow in favor, and the promoters of the enterprise and everybody else is well pleased. More than a million pounds have been sold here already and more than $100,000 has been turned loose here within the last three weeks."

Woman as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

and all interested parties, was held in the Baptist church Monday evening. This meeting created a great deal of enthusiasm and lots of interest is being created for this cause.

CUSTER NEWS AND PARAGRAPHS

By E. O. Penick

Mr. Jones A Standby.

Prof. D. C. Walls says that perhaps the most enthusiastic patron he has is Mr. Alex Jones, who is ever ready to render any assistance possible for the advancement of the school interest. His eldest son, Hubert, has missed only one day of the four years Mr. Walls has been here, and is now taking advantage of the spring term. If we had more parents who would see that their boys and girls were in school so regular, we would have fewer idle boys, and more intelligence. The best average of the past four years in school here has been made during this rigorous month of January. If the boys and girls who are in attendance can give such regular attendance in weather like this, we are forced to wonder what is the matter with our people, the parents of the country that the percentage of attendance generally over the county and state is so low.

Bachelors At Custer.

If the recent bill for taxing bachelors goes through our legislature, which we hope it will, the revenue we think will be wonderfully increased. We suggest that this be placed to the credit of the school fund. The measure seems to have some strenuous opposers, but we think that Messrs Gabe Bruner, Millard Harrington, Jas. Harrington, Jr., Joe Milburn and some others come under the 25c. rate.

Vess Oliver, of Constantine, was in town Monday.

Miss Lillie Alexander came home from Louisville last week.

Guy Springate has accepted a position in Iowa, and has gone there to assume his duties.

Believes In The College Man.

We believe in home, in the broadest sense of the word. Home enterprises, home industries, home associations, home loyalties, home, home, home. But we do not believe in home to the exclusion of, and disloyalty to outside friends. When we see worth and merit, ability and capacity, statecraft and manhood in another state, we are glad to see it rewarded, and deplore an attempt to, even in home folks, ruthlessly snatch the budding opportunity of another. We believe in Gov. Woodrow Wilson, as a college man, as an able governor of a sister state, as a man among men, and we believe he has the making of an able and far seeing President of the United States. All honor to a man who, when pressed to give a direct, pointed answer to a direct, pointed question, though it may entail personal criticism, that might blast the highest hope of an American citizen, does so, and then is too much of a man to enter into quibbles, and babble that always class a man with the common herd.

Percy Beard sold to Beard Bros., the old fair grounds tract of 96 acres at $40 an acre. Si Pate bought these grounds about 12 years ago for $600. He sold it to the Robertson Bros. for $1,100 and they sold it to Percy Beard for $2,600. This shows how lands are increasing in value in this county.

Thos. Rogers has bought the old Cabbage farm near Clarkson, Grayson county. He paid $5000 cash for 277 acres. Mr. Rogers is one of our best farmers and this county hates to give him up. To give you an idea of how he farms, he rented an old worn out place last year, near McQuady. It contained 150 acres, about 50 acres tillable. Off of this he made 18000 pounds of tobacco which he sold for $1,260 and 500 bushels of corn. He paid a cash rent of $125. The place formerly rented from $50 to $75 a year. The owner now asks $300 a year for it.

Warner Dieckman and family have moved to the home of his father-in-law, Mr. Milt Basham, of New Bethel. He will take charge of the farm.
